Born and raised in Ohio, Allison moved to Montana in 2017 to live and breathe the outdoor lifestyle. With a Bachelors in Middle Childhood Education from the University of Cincinnati and a Masters in English Education from Valley City State University, Allison enjoyed being an English teacher for middle and high school students for ten years. Deciding to take the leap away from education, Allison became a full-time real estate agent in hopes of helping others find their Montana dream home like she did. Loving the Montana lifestyle, Allison is enthusiastic about helping others find the peace and joy this life provides. Northwest Montana is a perfect location to find a house to start a family, have a weekend getaway home, or develop a generational home or ranch for your family to enjoy for years. Leaving behind the crazy, hectic city life, this mountain, quiet lifestyle is perfect for Allison. She loves to be in the mountains either snowmobiling, skiing, hiking, or taking a ride on a side-by-side as well as on the water on a boat, waterskiing, kayaking, or just floating the river. While enjoying what Trout Creek has to offer, Allison can usually be found with her toddler, husband, and two hound dogs in the great outdoors.
