$0

In Uruguay, in the Department of "Flores", known for its natural landscapes and palaeontological heritage, near the town of "Sarandi Grande", which plays an important agricultural role, "Las Tres Marias" is a typical Uruguayan farm currently used for cattle rearing.

It offers 462 hectares of good land that has been developed and equipped for livestock farming.

The house, which is in a good state of repair, dates back to 1880 and, despite successive alterations, has retained its character, giving it a certain charm.
