With approximately 1/2 a mile of St. Regis River and 1/2 a mile of Little Joe Creek, this 191 +/- acres, features multiple ponds and borders USFS land offering a unique opportunity for those seeking tranquility and natural beauty. The diverse landscape of lush forests, meandering waterways, and abundant wildlife creates a recreational haven. Whether you're interested in hunting, fishing, hiking, bird watching, or simply soaking in Montana, this acreage provides the perfect backdrop. The proximity to US Forest Service land expands your playground, offering endless trails and recreation opportunities. Watch the deer, elk, bears, turkeys, and other wildlife animals. For those dreaming of a private retreat or a sustainable living project, this property presents a blank canvas for your vision. With ample space for building, gardening, or creating a wildlife sanctuary, the possibilities are as vast as the landscape itself. Whether you envision a rustic cabin, a modern eco-home, or a cozy campsite, this land invites you to turn your dreams into reality.

Conveniently located just an hour from Missoula, MT, and two hours from Spokane, WA, this property offers easy access out of Saint Regis, MT. Nearby attractions include Lookout Ski Area and the scenic Hiawatha Trail. This property is nestled in what many consider to be the finest of Western Montana. The Saint Regis River in Western Montana is an approximately 33-mile tributary of the Clark Fork River, flowing east from the Bitterroot Mountains at Lookout Pass to the town of Saint Regis. Paralleling I-90, it is a very popular, accessible spot for fishing for cutthroat and rainbow trout. Nestled in the Bitterroot Mountains, the town of Saint Regis is surrounded by mountainous terrain and forests, and provides great access to I-90 and year round outdoor recreation.
